"Owned by those we serve"

MARSHALL, NC

May is National Electrical Safety Month

May is National Electrical Safety Month, and in recognition of the occasion, we are raising awareness about potential home electrical hazards and the importance of electrical safety. An average of 51,000 electrical home structure fires occur each year, claiming almost 500 lives, injuring more than 1,400 people and causing more than $1.3 billion in property damage each year, according to the National Fire Protection Association (NFPA). In addition, the US Consumer Product Safety Commission reports that nearly 400 people are electrocuted in the United States each year.

We have to do everything we can to make sure our cooperative members don't ever become a part of those statistics and that's why we're joining the national conversation about electrical safety this month to educate our members about potential electrical dangers.

Please take the time to check your home for these potentially hazardous electrical situations:

Inside the Home:

- * Inspect electrical cords often for broken connectors or fraying. Throw away any worn cords to eliminate the possibility of shock, short circuit or fire.
- * Don't overload power outlets.
- * The wattage of the bulbs you use in your home should match the wattage indicated on the light fixture. Overheated fixtures can lead to a fire.
- * When trying to unplug something from an outlet, pull on the plug, not the cord.
- * Keep in mind that turned off appliances are still connected to electricity until they are unplugged. To clean or repair these appliances always unplug them first.
- * Use extension cords only for short-term purposes, and make sure the cord is adequately suited for the amount of electricity it will be transferring.
- * Turn off and unplug all portable electrical appliances, like hairdryers, irons and shavers, when you're finished using them.
- * Be familiar with the location of your breaker box and make sure the switches are clearly labeled so you can shut off electricity quickly in the event of an emergency.

Outside the Home:

- * If there is a downed power line nearby, leave the area immediately and notify our office or call 911.
- * If others are around, let them know that they need to stay away.
- * "Call Before You Dig." Dial 811 before starting a digging project, and workers will be sent to your home to mark utility lines in your yard. This service is free, and it has the potential to save your life.
- * Never use electrical equipment near any wet areas, such as pools or ponds.

Safety is a year-round responsibility, but take the time right now to recognize National Electrical Safety Month by checking your home for potential risks. It only takes a few minutes to make sure you won't become one of these troubling statistics.

MANAGER'S REPORT

Vegetation Management...A Must

Jeff Loven

French Broad Electric takes great pride in providing members with the most reliable electricity possible. Tree contact with power lines is the single leading cause of outages on our system and that is why we have a carefully planned vegetation management program. At the same time, we are also committed to protecting the natural beauty of our landscapes and minimizing the impact we make on the environment.

With almost 5,000 miles of distribution power lines and 100 miles of transmission lines, controlling the tree and brush growth is critical to ensuring reliability to all our members. Keeping trees away from power lines is also a safety measure. Trees and other objects that come into contact with power lines can become energized, leading to shock or electrocution. Even fallen power lines can still be energized, which is why no one but a French Broad EMC line technician should ever go near a downed power line. A clear path for power lines also provides a safer working environment for the line technicians performing routine maintenance or power restoration.

This vegetation must be continually managed in our right-of-way's in order to deliver safe, reliable electricity to our members. That is why your cooperative uses a combination approach to right-of-way maintenance that includes selective herbicide application. Early in the process, trees and large growth are removed by our crews. The next summer, crews use a backpack applicator to apply environmentally safe herbicide targeted to vegetation that could grow into power lines. This herbicide allows lower growing vegetation to thrive, as is evidenced in our right-of-ways that have been treated for several years.

This low-volume manual method of vegetation management helps protect the natural habitat of the many plants and wildlife in our area. These practices are even endorsed by the NC Department of Natural Resources, The National Wild Turkey Federation, and Buckmasters.

Members can also help insure safe, reliable electricity by avoiding planting trees near or under power lines. Collectively, we can all work together to ensure that our right-of-way management program serves every member and ensures reliable electric service.
